PAUL CRAMPEL'S CHILD WIFE.

How an African Explorer Made Friends with the Natives.

Paul Crampel, the French explorer recently killed in Africa, was but twenty-seven years of age, yet he had done a great work and excited so much enthusiasm in Paris that the managers of French Africa have decided to carry out his plans in detail. His widow is a lady of much culture, and though overcome at first by grief, is now laboring earnestly in furtherance of his plans.

Much interest is felt as to the fate of Nyarinzhe, the African maid, who went with the expedition as interpreter. In August, 1888, Crampel started for Ogooni, and was long delayed by a warlike tribe, who demanded full particulars as to his mission. "My friends," said he to the council of chiefs, "my father is chief of all the white men and was the first to give the black clothing and firearms, and he has sent me here. My people will not believe I have seen you unless I bring back a wife. Let me have a child and I will bring her up like a white woman, and then my people will know that the M'Fans are their friends."

So a chief gave the white man his daughter Nyarinzhe, nine years old, and the child soon became attached to her new master. She endured the long journey well, stood the climate of Paris like a native, learned to read and play the piano with extraordinary ease, and was soon as French as any Parisienne in her love for stylish dresses. Her amiability and sprightliness won all hearts, but she rarely mentioned her African kinsmen. Life among them was not pleasant apparently for young girls.

She returned to Africa this year as an interpreter, and there is still a hope among her friends that she may have been with that division of the explorers which escaped the massacre and is now on its way to the coast. She was a fearless child, and in one fight where Crampel was wounded she stood by and assisted him like a veteran.

AN ANGEL OF THE SLUMS.

The Good Work Done by a Young Woman Among London's Poor.

Miss Beatrice Potter, who has done so much work and such good work in behalf of the laboring women of England, is a person of heroic mold and tolerably heroic lineage. She is the eighth and only unmarried daughter of Mr. Richard Potter, of Standish, Gloucestershire, England, who is now an invalid. Her mother was the daughter of Mr. A. Hayworth, who was in parliament the ally of John Bright, Richard Cobden and other radical reformers.

Her father was at one time a leading railroad official, and Miss Beatrice acted as his private secretary. She was also a pupil of Herbert Spencer, the great sociologist. Thus she was led to study social and economic questions and soon became an enthusiast. She assisted Charles Booth in gathering materials for his great work on the "Life and Labor of the People," and then learned enough of tailoring to work in the cheap shops. Thus equipped she toiled among the "sweaters" in the poorest districts of East London, saw and suffered and talked with sufferers, and thus obtained facts at first hand.

Her "Pages from a Working Girl's Diary" show how completely she had absorbed the feelings of the class. Her lectures and reports as well as her testimony before the parliamentary commission have gained a worldwide fame. She is now engaged on an elaborate work on the history and philosophy of trades union movements.

Keeping Sweet Potatoes.

A correspondent in Orchard and Garden writes: "Sweet potatoes we keep without trouble by placing a good bed of pine straw beneath them, piling them in sharp conical heaps and covering them thickly with pine straw. A rough board shed is then built over the rows of heaps to keep the straw from getting wet. They are allowed to remain in this way until freezing weather is apprehended, and then a heavy coat of earth is put over the heaps and beaten smooth. This course gives the potatoes a chance to sweat and dry off under the pine straw cover and when the earth cover is put on it is kept dry by the shed, and the dry earth keeps out frost much better than if it was allowed to get wet with rain."

Another correspondent of the same journal suggests for localities where frosts are severe, drying sweet potatoes in an evaporator for winter use. He says: "We cut the potatoes in slices, having first removed the skin—and they dry very quickly and perfectly. They are restored to their edible condition by boiling or steaming, and if then placed in an earthen pan with a little sugar and butter over the top and baked, they make a dish fit for a farmer king."

How Muskrats Are Trapped.

Trapping is one of the modes by which muskrats are secured. The traps are made of boards about 6 inches wide and 3 feet long. These are nailed together like an ordinary box trap, the open ends being secured by swinging doors of wire network, fastened to the upper part of both entrances. These doors allow easy ingress to the trap, but once in the rat cannot get out without opening the door by pulling it to him, which secret they seem very slow to discover. These traps are put in the leads running from the houses to the water when the tide is at low ebb and the rats are out feeding. On the return they crawl up the leads, push against one of the wire doors or the trap, which immediately opens into the trap, but they cannot go further, as the next door opens toward them. Before they can gnaw out the tide makes up and they are drowned in the trap. By having a number of traps and watching the tides closely a trapper can capture a large number in this way.—Baltimore Sun.

Judged by His Appearance.

An amusing incident occurred some time ago which illustrates the scanty ceremony with which shabbily dressed people are often treated. A country magnate in the north of England was called upon with reference to a scheme for the furtherance of some local charity by a person whom the servant, judging by his timeworn habiliments, described to his master as "either a beggar or a tout for orders," adding that he had left him in the hall, not thinking it safe to show him into one of the rooms. The "beggar or tout" turned out to be no less a personage than the member for the district, and one of the richest men in the county.—London Tit-Bits.

THE COMING MAN.

A pair of very chubby legs,
Encased in scarlet hose;
A pair of little stubby boots,
With rather doubtful toes;
A little kilt, a little coat,
Cut as a mother can;
And let before us stands in state
The future's "coming man."

His eyes, perchance, will read the stars,
And search their unknown ways;
Perchance the human heart and soul
Will open to their gaze;
Perchance their keen and flashing glance
Will be a nation's light—
Those eyes that now are wistful bent
On some "big fellow's" kite.

Those hands—those little busy hands—
So sticky, small and brown;
Those hands whose only mission seems
To pull all order down—
Who knows what latent strength may be
Hidden within their grasp,
Though now 'tis but a tatty stick
In sturdy hold they grasp.

Ah, blessings on those little hands,
Whose work is yet undone!
And blessings on those little feet,
Whose race is yet unrun!
And blessings on the little brain
That has not learned to plan!
What'er the future holds in store,
God bless the "coming man!"

—Somerville Journal.

At a Marriage License Window.

A marriage license window is a queer place, and one at which human nature is bared to official inspection as it seldom is in any other government office. Hither come the gossips to ask whether certain couples whose names were published the other day have yet got married; to ask what sort of a looking man it was who took out a license to wed with Susie Todd—was he tall and light or stout and dark? And hither come angry mothers to say that no permit should have been given for their daughters, who are not so old as was said. They ask how the law can be invoked to punish the offending bridegrooms. But there are other brides who appear to be forty or thirty, yet declare themselves thirty or twenty.

Back comes a man to ask if his permit cannot be changed, because he wants to buy a lottery ticket of the same number as his wedding license, and cannot do so unless a change is made. Old men speak for girlish brides, and ancient wrinkled women lead up very young men, holding their arms as if they might escape. Once a girl came weeping, and said the man she meant to marry lay dying, and there was not a moment to lose. Indeed, it is a queer place, and the whole illimitable graunt that novelists have spanned in many centuries is there at hand still sounding fresh notes and offering new chords.—Julian Ralph in Harper's Weekly.

Bound to Be Ready for War.

Never since Sedan have the French shown such activity and zeal in perfecting their military organization as at present. About 430 miles of track have been added to their strategical railways this year. Next year 300 miles more will be built. The work of increasing the strategical availability of the French railway system was planned by De Freycinet in 1879, and will be completed probably in 1903. At the great maneuvers recently a telephone and telegraph wagon, invented by Inspector Willot, was kept near the scene of operations, so that the newspaper reporters could send their dispatches directly from the field. The apparatus of the wagon is such that it can be connected quickly with any telephone or telegraph wire.

An Enthusiast on Nebraska.

A more beautiful country than Nebraska would not be easy to find. The groves of planted trees, the lodges, the rows of elms and cottonwoods along the edges of pastures and fields, the grazing cattle and horses, the pretty farmsteads, the huge stocks of garnered wheat and other small grains, the waving fields of ripening corn, the meadows of clover (red and white), and the ever present goldenrod form a landscape of quiet charm which fills the eye and mind. W.

Recent experiments in Queensland have shown that mother-of-pearl shells can be made to produce pearls artificially.

The largest building that ever was erected was the machine gallery at the Paris exhibition, which was exactly a quarter of a mile in length, with a span of 300 feet.

Pope never could compose well without first declaiming for some time at the top of his voice, and thus rousing his nervous system to its fullest activity.

Fifth Dam, Charles Kent mare, dam of Hambletonian, No. 10, by Imp Bel-founder.

Sixth Dam, One Eye, by Bishop's Hambletonian.

Seventh Dam, Silver Tail, by Imp Messenger.

DURANGO CHIEF is a beautiful Black, with left hind foot white to the ankle, stands 15 1/2 hands high and weighs 1150 pounds.

He is strongly inbred to Rysky's Hambletonian No. 10, (from where over one-half of all the 2:30 trotters have descended,) and the outcrosses of his breeding are to be found in almost every 2:30 trotter in existence. In fact, Durango Chief is the immediate product of the incomparable combination of the Hambletonian, American Star, Woodberry Morgan, Pilot, Jr., and Member Chief families, topped out by the best representatives of the Clay families as an out-cross.

Particular attention is called to his Royal line of maternal dams, trotting breed, back seven generations, and he is the result of long, straight and true breeding. The trotting instinct has been so fully bred into him that he is completely mounted to all its requirements. All admirers of a representative of the American trotting horse are invited to call and see him.

DURANGO CHIEF will stand in Phoenix, at Commercial Hotel Stables, for the season, February 1, to July 1. Terms, $50, payable at close of season, with usual return privilege. Maree pastured and cared for at $2 per month. Not responsible for accidents or escapes. M. H. PORTER, T. W. PEMBERTON, JOHN HOPLEY, Owners.

Face Bleach.

Cucumber and Elder Flower Cream.

It is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind and prevents sunburn and freckles, and blackheads, will never come while you use it. It cleanses the face far better than does soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of the skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali, and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00, ask your druggist for it.

SAMPLE BOTTLE mailed free to any lady on receipt of 10 cents in stamps to pay for postage and packing. Lady Agents wanted.
